Predictions

Todd D. Burlage: Notre Dame 48, Syracuse 3

Statistically speaking, Syracuse might be better off saving the travel costs to Notre Dame Stadium and skipping this game, given its season downturn. Former Irish quarterback Steve Angeli transferred to and started for the Orange to start this season and shined while leading Syracuse to a 3-1 record.

Everything changed when Angeli was lost for the season due to an Achilles injury after the hot start. Since, the Orange has lost six straight games and has been outscored by an average of 22.6 points during the slide. This one is all Notre Dame, start to finish, providing a chance for the Irish walk-ons to log some minutes on Senior Day.

Steve Downey: Notre Dame 52, Syracuse 0

The Orange's season has been an unmitigated disaster since old friend Steve Angeli when down with an Achilles injury in Week 4.

The ACC's youngest roster simply isn't equipped to handle what has been a difficult schedule without its veteran quarterback, who was averaging nearly 330 yards passing with 10 touchdown through four games. During Syracuse's six-game losing streak — its longest since dropping eight straight to end the 2020 season, a COVID-impacted year in which the Orange finished 1-10 — have scored just 11.6 points per game while allowing 34.2.

Since Marcus Freeman arrived in South Bend as the defensive coordinator in 2021, the Irish have outscored the opposition by an average of 44.8-5.3 while posting a pair of shutouts. Expect more of the same against an overmatched Orange team.

Eric Hansen: Notre Dame 44, Syracuse 6

The difference between the Steve Angeli-led Syracuse football team and the one that's gone 0-6 in his absence is staggering. The only statistical non-disasters on its résumé after a bye week are a No. 50 ranking in passing offense, that's actually down 46 spots since the former Notre Dame backup quarterback suffered a season-ending injury in Week 4 against Clemson, and Jack Stonehouse ranking fifth in the nation in punting (47.7).

The downside is he punts a little too often — 48 times this season, compared to Notre Dame's James Rendell's 19 going into last the road test at Pitt Nov. 15. Most of the Orange's national rankings, among the 134 teams the NCAA charts, are below 100, with total defense (122nd), sacks allowed (123rd) and turnover margin (125th) the lowlights.

The Irish get the sentimentality of Senior Day out of the way early, then take care of business in decisive fashion.

Tyler Horka: Notre Dame 42, Syracuse 7

No Steve Angeli, no shot of Syracuse winning this football game. That's what this ultimately comes down to. With Angeli, the Orange were 3-1 with their only loss coming in the season opener versus Tennessee. Without them, they're 0-6 and their losses haven't been close. They've got an average margin of defeat in their current losing streak of 22.6 points per game. Over three touchdowns.

Notre Dame is the best team they've faced in this stretch, unless you think Miami is still better than the Irish by way of the Hurricanes' season-opening win over the Irish, so Notre Dame should be able to put a pretty good beatdown on the Orange on Senior Day in South Bend. A Senior Day that could have been a celebratory one for Angeli had he stayed at Notre Dame, by the way, but that's neither here nor there.

Tyler James: Notre Dame 41, Syracuse 13

The unfortunate injury to Syracuse quarterback Steve Angeli didn't just make his return trip to Notre Dame less interesting. The loss of Angeli, who spent three seasons at Notre Dame, turned Syracuse into a bit of a laughingstock. The Orange hasn't won a game since Angeli was officially declared out for the season following a 34-21 win over Clemson.

Syracuse's offense has no potency, and its defense doesn't offer much resistance either. The Irish should be able to roll while closing out their home slate.

Kyle Kelly: Notre Dame 56, Syracuse 10

Syracuse has struggled mightily since Steve Angeli's season ended prematurely. After going 3-1 with the former Notre Dame passer under center, the Orange lost six straight games entering Week 12.

Meanwhile, the Irish have outscored teams 124-21 on Senior Day in the Marcus Freeman era. Therefore, I like Notre Dame to win big.

Jack Soble: Notre Dame 42, Syracuse 7

Syracuse is playing out the string, coming off six straight losses and lacking any answers at the quarterback position. The Orange aren't a complete pushover everywhere else on the field, but they aren't nearly talented enough to overcome their deficiencies under center.

Plus, Notre Dame doesn't lose on Senior Day. Irish by a lot.
